

If you just submitted your first “daily score” will be out on Thursday, but a single round is 4 weeks long. The daily scores from now until your first round resolves don’t really matter, only the final score at the end of the 4 weeks.

The leaderboard is the weighted average over the last 20 rounds. So you are going to need to wait at least 24 weeks before you will have a full idea of your position on the leaderboard. Empty rounds have a -0.1 correlation score for every round you don’t submit.

This is a long game and the leaderboard isn’t what you should be focusing on. With the rounds being 4 weeks long, you are going to have to be patient to see the results of your modelling work.