

So this is based on account-level data and not model-level data. So how is that aggregated/weighted?