

It doesn't change very often. Validation data is updated once in a while, training data stays the same. Right now they are working on a 10x feature explosion – that will be the next big change presumably (which will be backward compatible), and yes they'll be plenty of announcements and discussions about that.