

My post

<https://gov.uniswap.org/t/retroactive-airdrop-excludes-proxy-contract-users-e-g-dharma-matcha-etc/1222/184?u=neverselling>

was hidden because community flags. Was this a moderator hiding my post or just because people flagged it?

I feel if someone identifies themselves and doesn't remain anonymous, they leave themselves open to public criticism through news articles. But that's ok, if the mods believe it violated a rule, no problem.

However if it was hidden purely from being flagged by users, this raises the question of raids and opinion manipulation on here. So that would be yet another reason to vet new users or at least have flagged posts manually reviewed, say weekly, by mods.