Similar to the NBA draft, the RollApp Draft is a process for onboarding rising stars to the big leagues. It is a framework designed for easily launching community-approved RollApps and connecting them with liquidity and users.

Green-lighted RollApps will receive funding, community support, awareness, and liquidity incentives for their token pair alongside all the relevant infrastructure (sequencer nodes, RPC endpoints, and block explorers). This approach will make RollApps not only technically sound but also strategically positioned for long-term success.

In addition, multiple incubators and hackathons will participate in The Draft acting as established guided programs on top of the open framework.
