Yes, so the target for each round is 20 trading days out from when we get the data, i.e. we are predicting 20 trading days into the future. (As far as we know, we are just predicting a future snapshot of a particular day and only the state of things on that single future day matter to our final score. But we don't actually know that for sure, I keep meaning to ask about that and see if they will confirm.) So what are you asking for then is for targets to be included for some of the intermediate days also?