Hi Degerhan,

Thanks for sharing your code, that is very helpful as I am also trying to reverse engineer the target.

I have noticed that you always add a fixed 10 days timedelta to calculate the day of the final results. Is that always the case? If in one week there is an holiday for instance, then if you always publish the results 10 calendar days after it means that you have less trading days and your target will be 5day_2day instead that a 6day_2day right?

Hope the question makes sense. Thanks!