It's desirable for private functions to have access to public state. Since private functions are not able to reliably access the most recent public data (only sequencer can do that) we will need to somehow store the historic public data tree roots. What are the best approaches to do this?