I think we should up the transaction fee to 0.5%, leaving the original 0.3% for liquidity pools, but committing the extra 0.2% to the treasury to execute 1) buybacks 2) liquidity incentives 3) other general treasury stuff like paying programmers to implement new proposals and audits etc