It was like that, once. They wanted to encourage consistent staking, and went too far the other way. Essentially, they just stopped working on staking after implementing "overlapping let all of it ride every week" style staking, which of course is madness from a risk-control perspective.