Hi! Yesterday I opened my ledger for first time since a long time. I was just looking through the transactions and was looking to unstake some things. While i was at it, I found out I was sent some NFT's. I opened the link to redeem them, and had to enter my private key. I had to authorize for staking earlier though the process was a bit different but that was long time ago, so since it came from inside the Ledger live app I assumed it was ok, and that it comes from the staking/staked eth, not even thinking it was valuable or something but just following the intstructions. But no it wasn't, my entire ledger has been robbed. I had about 44k (13 eth) staked and is now staked elsewhere. Can we freeze or do something against it?

If you need certain proof then let me know…

I have screenshots which i tried to embed but it says I cannot?