For the last few months, most of the conversations around working group suggestions has been driven by voice calls & twitter spaces. They've been ongoing, multiple times each week, for the entire period. I'm curious to get a feel on how others feel about this process. Soon, WG0 will send it's WG suggestion to snapshot. How does everybody feel about it? Have you engaged with the build process and enjoyed it?