hello!

i just found this project, and am very intrigued! privacy is a huge thing for crypto, and one of my main issues with it!

i looked up bridge mining etc. and came across the FAQ on the secret bridge site. there, regarding missing coins, is stated:

'If, for any reason, there is an outage, error, or other issue with the swap, the bridge operators are ready to step in and manually restore funds.

i am not the most knowledgable person unfortunately, regarding how this all works exactly. but to me, this implies a potential bottleneck for the censorship resistance?

could someone please explain to me how this isn't the case?

sorry for being somewhat lazy
