Yesterday, dYdX experienced a chain halt lasting over 10 hours, leading to more than $3M in liquidations.

While centralized exchanges (CEXs) may compensate for system errors, the question arises: who should take responsibility in decentralized exchanges (DEXs)

?

For further details, here are the sources:

- Twitter: https://twitter.com/clc_validator/status/1777637048658309199

- Blog: dYdX Chain Halt & Over 3M Liquidation — Crypto Learning Club |dYdX Validator

This is a brainstorming session. I'm looking forward to various ideas and discussions here!