Let's greenlight the company behind Aave to do any of certain types of changes without asking for community approval first! Without going through the AIP process, without even polling for sentiment. It's a waste of time for most types of decisions. At this stage, it's better for us if we iterate faster. We can always revoke this decision later.

As long as the changes improve the protocol, the UI/UX, or the APY of staked AAVE, do we really threads for stuff like:

- new markets (of course, we'll vote Yes on any new market, we want more volume and composability)

- risk parameters

- UI/UX of aave.com

- … (what else?)

I repeat, the big advantage of approving this AIP will be that we'll move faster than competitors. I'll formalize the proposal after we get a discussion going. I'm especially curious on which types of decisions they could take by themselves; they could chime in with a list themselves.
