The training data never updates. That's it. However, we do get a handful of new validation eras once in a while (once or twice a year maybe). They said they were gonna add some every six months, but it doesn't look like they are actually gonna hold to that. There is a feature expansion in the pipeline though – i.e. not more training rows, but more features per row. A whole lot more (10x what we have now). There will be a big announcement about that when the time comes…