If you have many entries in the submission with exactly the same score, then there is some randomness in calculating a spearman correlation - the equal-score entries have to be put into an ordered rank somehow, and that would affect your score, even though you submit the same predictions.

Not sure if that is what is happening, but it might be.