Using forex rate as a factor and transforming everything into log_returns seems the best way to go in the context of ML.