Abstract

We need to incentivise the community members to help the DAO more, to get this done we should find a solution to reward them. I would suggest to use coordinape.com because the tool was created exactly for that

Motivation

The simple premise is that if you ask everyone in the community who is doing good work, their collective answers will give a good sense of where the value is and who should be most rewarded. Over time, this also provides valuable insights for the DAO about what kinds of work is prioritized, what the community finds most valuable, and who are the key contributors in different areas. The shared visual display also enables everyone in the community to see who is working on what and find opportunities for collaboration or reduce duplication of effort.

Rationale

At the moment there is tons of $APE holders and almost zero decentralized collaboration, if we will not find a solution to incentivise active community members, we will start to decline.

Specifications

Coordinape.com as a platform and $APE for rewards

Steps to Implement

We need to decide amount of funds to allocate for the rewards. I would suggest starting with a small amount and increasing every month so that using of the tool grow organically.
