The subject is self-explanatory.

Any need in that? It seems we've managed to construct that. For transaction signing at first, then we will see.

And, yes, this scheme would not mean there would be a need to change specs - we've managed to keep the verification function the same as in the original BLS.